FLOOR DEBATE

April 30, 2001 LB 543

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Thank you, Senator Maxwell. Members of the Legislature, it took the teachers awhile to catch on, but then they did. Well, I say to them what I said to...about those companies; let them go. They're not going to find what they think they are in these other places. And if they think that if they go to a bigger city they're going to be able to get as much with their dollar as they can get in Omaha, Nebraska, it shows how lacking in knowledge they are. You have some very parochial, and I don't mean it in a religious sense now, very parochial, backward people teaching, and they are so uninformed. I'm amazed at their lack of sophistication. They will hand out, or have handed out, these papers that will show the number of dollars that are paid to teachers someplace else, and they never correlate that to what the cost of living is in those other places. I'd like to ask Senator Maxwell a question.

PRESIDENT MAURSTAD: Senator Maxwell.

SENATOR MAXWELL: Yes.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Senator Maxwell, do you think the cost of living, and by that I mean how much you pay for the essentials of life, do you think the cost of living is the same in every city?

SENATOR MAXWELL: No.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Do you think it is higher in bigger cities?

SENATOR MAXWELL: Yes.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Do you think there's a possibility that a teacher who might get more dollars in a bigger city may not have the spending punch from those dollars that a teacher in Omaha would have from the number of dollars an Omaha teacher gets?

SENATOR MAXWELL: I agree.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Thank you. I wish Senator Maxwell would be listened to by more of these teachers, or if he'd say these
